Warn Railroads, Also Shooting, or Hanging? It Works in Germany What Woman Is Great?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Leaves of absence is stopped in the army and in the marines. That is a warning to workmen on strike—meaning that the government will enforce the President's proclamation, with force if necessary.

The railroads seem not very obdurate, not overanxious to co-operate with the President in his peace efforts.

Whatever the railroads have wanted they have taken—out of the public's pocket, ever since the war started; hundreds and hundreds of millions; also the right to combine, to raise rates, to do as they choose. Some warning to them, following the warning to workers, might be timely.

Mr. Woods, convicted of killing his wife in Salt Lake City, and allowed to choose between hanging or shooting, chooses shooting. Which would you choose in that unfortunate position?

The colored lady, asked if she would rather bring up boys or girls, answered: "If I had my druthers, I wouldn't bring up neither."

Men forced to choose between hanging and shooting would choose shooting nine times out of ten, because it is less disgraceful. But shooting is more painful, unless a bullet enters the brain, in which case there is no pain.

And shooting involves a mental effort. You must think up and wait, contributing to your fate. With hanging everything is done for you.

Curious is a law that gives a man his choice, like a sort of executioner's table d'hôte. The brutal thing is that killing is still officially done.

Railroad statistics for a week show in 1922, as compared with the same week in 1921, 67,047 fewer cars loaded. The business of the country amounted to 67,000 carloads less in one week than it had amounted to the same week a year before.

At the same time Mr. Haworth, secretary of the mechanical division of the American Railway Association, warns Americans against German competition. The railroad secretary might notice that in Germany the railroads are run by the government for the benefit of manufacturers and business men. Here they are run by private individuals, and run for the benefit of the stockholders.

Germans, owning her railroads, encourages cable building. This country, largely controlled by railroads, discourages cable building.

Here they say that government ownership of railroads must be a failure. Why must it? Everybody knows that throughout the war the German railroads, owned and managed by the government, were marvellous in efficiency. The German armies rapidly and surely from the eastern to the western front, and back.

Women's clubs and some gentlemen, are asked to "name the twelve greatest women of America." They have not answered the preliminary question, "What is a great woman?" One lady writes which he gave out in Paris on Continued on Page 4, Column 2.

Once a soda jerker, always a soda jerker.

You may make millions, be the king of finance, the idol of thousands, the master of all, but if you started as a soda jerker you are still at heart a scooper of cream, a concocter of sweets, a jerker of fizz.

Henry Vincent Greene, sued for $10,000,000, the soda-jerking kid who leaped into State street and sold stock to 40,000 hard-working folks with scotch-hold ambitions had a private soda fountain in his magnificent Weston home.

A private soda fountain had Henry, a marble creation of his own fancy, a creation that he probably wished he had had ten years ago when in a Nabury drug store he served sundae and frapped drinks to flappers and their sweetest when perched on stools and said sweet nothing over mahogany creations.

Almost $10,000 cost Henry's private fountain, erected in 1919 when he was at the pinnacle of his financial manipulations and State street was calling him the "Go-getting kid."

SCHOOER ASHORE OFF CHATHAM SHOAL

Chatham, July 12.—A three-masted schooner, partially identified as the Peter S., went ashore on the west side of Chatham shoal today. The vessel, which was bound east, appeared to be resting easily and it was thought she would float at high tide.

It may be forced to do so.

Relative of Mrs. Hotchkiss are convinced that she was the victim of foul play. They will ask Coroner Phelan to examine the body of the young bride and perform an autopsy.

Thomas H. Thompson, wealthy retired Boston steel man, uncle of Mrs. Hotchkiss, said today that her relatives were positive that her death was not accidental. Further, he said, she did not commit suicide.

"There is something big behind this tragedy," Mr. Thompson stated. "My niece was the victim of a jealous man and woman. We intend to drag this matter into the light, despite the influence that has been used to keep it under cover."

Frank Hill, who drove Mrs. Hotchkiss from her hotel in Bridgeport to the fatal rendezvous on the beach last night, sold an important item of information. He said that

ANARCHISTS ATTEMPT TO KILL MILLER AND APOINCARE

Paris, July 14.—An unsuccessful attempt was made today to assassinate President Alexander Millerand of the French Republic, and Premier Poincare. The secretary of the Paris Society of Anarchists was arrested, charged with the crime.

President Millerand and Premier Poincare were returning from Longchamp to Paris by automobile when the attempted murder took place.

The assassin, evidently knowing the plans of the officials, had hidden himself to await the arrival of the President and Premier. While Millerand and M. Poincare escaped, one of the bullets struck and wounded a woman.

The prisoner was very nervous when arrested and the police attributed the escape of the two officials to his anxiety and the fact that the motor cars in which the President and Premier were riding were traveling at a rapid pace.

Immediately after her arrest the anarchist was taken to the Paris police prefecture and submitted to a long examination by a commission of five members who were involved in the murder plot.

Both M. Millerand and M. Poincare took the situation calmly. They said they realized that attacks upon the President and Premier were a part of the present state of affairs in France. It was rumored at first that the attempt upon the lives of the two statesmen was inspired by Germans or communists, but this was not substantiated.

The shooting took place in the Champs Elysees, near the corner of Avenue Marigny.

SERVED SENTENCE.
The prisoner, Gustave Courty, 23 years old, told the police he did not mean to kill M. Millerand and M. Poincare, but "merely intended to make a hostile demonstration."

Police officers declared, however, that Courty had been seen to take careful aim.

Courty said he was an automobile mechanic. In 1921 he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for distributing anarchist propaganda.

Following his release, Courty attempted, unsuccessfully, to lodge against Bouvier by the police. If found guilty he may be sentenced to death.

When searched today he had two revolvers. There were twenty-five cartridges in his pockets. He was immediately arraigned for a preliminary hearing. Police officers said he found at a distance of only seven feet.

Mrs. Marie Durand, who was wounded in the arm, was still hospitalized and not yet able to walk.

Three shots were fired by Bouvier. At the time a procession of automobiles was returning from Longchamp bearing high officials of state who had been witnessed by French military garrisons at Longchamp.

HIGHWAY CROWDED.
It was understood the police held the theory that the anarchist acted as an individual. The attempted assassination took place about noon.

At first M. Millerand and M. Poincare apparently did not know they were under attack. The highway was filled with automobiles and the noise of traffic drowned the sound of shots.

Whitehouse, Va., July 14.—One mine was killed and ten others injured, four seriously, today, when a mine train, carrying them to work, near Mordun, ran into a dynamite trap and was destroyed.

Washington, July 14 (By the Associated Press).—The American Government has received information today that John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and other national officers of the union who have been negotiating with the government since President Harding offered assistance to settle the coal strike, are preparing to return to their respective homes in the United States.

Washington, July 14.—A President's proclamation declaring the emergency of the coal strike, scheduled to become effective today, probably will be President Harding's answer to the blumens mine and operators if they refuse to accept his proposal for the settlement of the strike.

Diary tactics on the part of other miners or operators following the conference scheduled to reconvene at the White House next Monday will not be tolerated, Mr. President Harding, it was said today by his advisers.

Government officials in close touch with the developments in the coal strike situation characterized the tactics of both sides as "bold rather than a policy of delay and evasion."

Instead of a gradual conversion to the use of the President's plan, which proposes the return to work of the miners under the old wage scale pending investigation and arbitration by a general commission, the trend has been sharply toward the use of force.

Disagreement over essential points in the President's proposal has developed into a general refusal of both sides to accept the administration's plan as the basis for settlement.

It was pointed out today that a presidential proclamation in itself, offering nothing in a direct way, it will nevertheless serve as the administration's "platform before the public" as a convenient medium of getting away to any use of troops.

The assassin, evidently knowing the plans of the officials, had hidden himself to await the arrival of the President and Premier. While Millerand and M. Poincare escaped, one of the bullets struck and wounded a woman.

The prisoner was very nervous when arrested and the police attributed the escape of the two officials to his anxiety and the fact that the motor cars in which the President and Premier were riding were traveling at a rapid pace.

Immediately after her arrest the anarchist was taken to the Paris police prefecture and submitted to a long examination by a commission of five members who were involved in the murder plot.

Both M. Millerand and M. Poincare took the situation calmly. They said they realized that attacks upon the President and Premier were a part of the present state of affairs in France. It was rumored at first that the attempt upon the lives of the two statesmen was inspired by Germans or communists, but this was not substantiated.

The shooting took place in the Champs Elysees, near the corner of Avenue Marigny.

SERVED SENTENCE.
The prisoner, Gustave Courty, 23 years old, told the police he did not mean to kill M. Millerand and M. Poincare, but "merely intended to make a hostile demonstration."

Police officers declared, however, that Courty had been seen to take careful aim.

Courty said he was an automobile mechanic. In 1921 he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for distributing anarchist propaganda.

Following his release, Courty attempted, unsuccessfully, to lodge against Bouvier by the police. If found guilty he may be sentenced to death.

When searched today he had two revolvers. There were twenty-five cartridges in his pockets. He was immediately arraigned for a preliminary hearing. Police officers said he found at a distance of only seven feet.

Mrs. Marie Durand, who was wounded in the arm, was still hospitalized and not yet able to walk.

Three shots were fired by Bouvier. At the time a procession of automobiles was returning from Longchamp bearing high officials of state who had been witnessed by French military garrisons at Longchamp.

HIGHWAY CROWDED.
It was understood the police held the theory that the anarchist acted as an individual. The attempted assassination took place about noon.

At first M. Millerand and M. Poincare apparently did not know they were under attack. The highway was filled with automobiles and the noise of traffic drowned the sound of shots.

MARILYN MILLER GETS CABLE WITH "STING" FROM ZIEGFELD

"STAKE" THE GALS WEDDING

Bathtub, July 13. It has that ring to me and sister Claire. Other friends of mine in Boston get a similar interpretation upon the latest cable felicitation.

THE HEEDING STING.

"There's that confounded sting that was expressed in his Paris interview, when he says that he says—I have to smile when I think of my previous—'that God will bestow His blessing on Jack and me, and, in the same breath, he tells me the mistakes of my life. That is the hardest-earned thing in the world which makes me feel that I am a failure.'"

"It indicates Mr. Ziegfeld can settle his feelings. He's down right open to my marriage, and he knows it, and his heart and mind could not forget it, and that's why the word 'mistake' popped into his head."

"I was saying in my narrative to Jack and me, that my late husband, Frank Carter, was the one who first interested me in Jack Ziegfeld and caused me to admire him from afar before I met him. Frank and Jack had been friends. The papers had been printing things about Jack and the navy at that time."

CALLS JACK TRUE BLUE.

"Whenever anybody said anything derogatory to Jack and when there was unfavorable comment in the newspapers, Frank always came to Jack's defense. I used to ask Frank why he did this—why he was so interested in Mr. Ziegfeld and he would say:

"'Marilynn, if you and the world knew Jack Ziegfeld as I know him there would be nothing but praise for him. The rumors about him and his name, I'm rather old at this time, but Jack Ziegfeld is true blue.'"

"My late husband said many other things about Jack which made me interested in Jack's career and his name. Frank had told me that Jack had a way about him that led strangers to misunderstand him, and I later discovered that he was true."

MEETING WITH CARTER.

"I had had a meeting with the people in London, and Frank Carter had apartments in the same house. Claire and I used to see him going to the theatre. I was very interested in him, and I recall that I thought him very beautiful. Frank was handsome. I think he was the first fellow who ever made a real appeal to me at that age. I was very romantic. Strangers to me were never introduced in London."

"He was known as the leading juvenile and played in big productions. He played in the theatre when I was with Al Jolson. Frank was very handsome. I met him when Eddie Carter moved across a hill. Yes, Frank had talent. He also had success in 'theater'."

"I did not meet him until the 1915 Folies. You know, rehearsals for the Folies are mostly individual affairs until the very last rehearsal. One does not meet new-comers until the major rehearsal. Well, I remember that I had completed a very difficult dance and sat on a chair in the wings to rest."

DEVELOPED INTO LOVE.

"A young man came over and cautioned me about the draught. Imagine my surprise, and I must confess, my delight, to behold Frank Carter, who I had secretly adored in London. I told him I thought it was too warm to catch cold, but he advised me to be careful and covered my shoulders with his overcoat. I thought that very thought full and nice."

"This little incident quickly developed into a love affair. I admired Frank's talent as much as his looks. He had a country place on Long Island and kept an immaculate flower garden and when the company was leaving for an engagement at Atlantic City I remember his case with a huge bouquet which he had picked himself in that quaint little garden of his and tossed them to me into the car with his best wishes."

"Frank was forever doing the unexpected, thoughtful things. From the day he covered my shoulders I felt that there was someone who had real interest in me, and to think that I was making it all the pleasure. I had known much other men, but I never married. I was a clever dancer and singer and my husband to be proved."

MET GIRLISH IDEALS.

"You know I unconsciously formulated specifications for a husband when a very young girl. I decided my husband must be dark, have black hair and large, black eyes and a slender, boyish form, be-

MARILYN MILLER AND "FLO" ZIEGFELD (IN CIRCLE)

Miss Miller in continuing the record of her romantic career, told exclusively to the Boston American, declares Manager Ziegfeld's attacks upon herself and Jack Pickford, her fiancé, are actually largely by the fact that she has repeatedly rebuffed his efforts to force unwelcome attention upon her. These attacks, she says, were persisted in even immediately after her husband, Frank Carter, had been killed, and after Ziegfeld had married Billie Burke.

When the car skidded on a sharp turn and turned turtle. This was May 1919. I shall never forget that date. "I had stood from him as I had done before my marriage. The thought that he did not respect my mourning cut me to the quick. And yet to accommodate him, and in answer to his pleadings, I consented to appear in 'Rally' the first time it was shown in Boston, scarcely one week after my husband's death. I remember my heart was so heavy that I could hardly utter a sound when I came on the stage."

"They said they had been watching every train for hours. They said they had been in the car with Frank. They asked me to sit down. I told them I wanted to have to Frank in the hospital. Then and there they could be the arm and add to my grief. They both vowed me to all I could do."

FIRST HUSBAND KILLED.

"But Frank and I were separated for months while he toured with his company. When I was in the contract Frank stood up with me to play juvenile opposite me. He was killed soon after, a few days before our first anniversary. He and three young men friends were driving in my car to Philadelphia."

An Old Sore

looked solemn. A fear grew in my heart.

ZIEGFELD RENEWS ATTENTION.
"Your husband is dead," said one of the young men and turned away. "But the woman said he was unconscious and in the hospital," I protested.

"He was killed instantly, pinned under the car," said the other young man. A fourth member of the party was confined to the hospital for six months. This ended my married life and Frank Carter's promising career. I was stunned. I couldn't believe it. Frank and I had so many things planned. We had even talked of old age together, and to think he was in that horrid morgue in Cum-

"My grief affected my work. Flo Ziegfeld sent me a letter of sympathy. He told me when he saw me that he was very sorry for my trouble. He sent the most beautiful floral offering of the many that greeted poor Frank's body, he who had hitherto attached him as he is now attacking Jack Pickford."

DIDN'T RESPECT MOURNING.

"He invited me to spend a fortnight at his home at Hasting-on-the-Hudson with Billie Burke, his wife, but I politely declined."

"While I was in mourning he renewed his attentions. He began giving me flowers and candy and hanging around my dressing room. I suppose he thought that I came on the stage. I had never had such a feeling in my life. "I thought the performance would never end. I kept thinking of Frank all through it for days and weeks and months thereafter. One of the first things I resolved to do was to have a fitting memorial over Frank's grave in Woodlawn. I had a mausoleum erected. The had cost $150 and the mausoleum $25,000."

"It's made of white marble. From London it looks like a little white temple. I wanted it that way for Frank. It's had an exact replica of it erected over Olive Thomas's grave, which is close to that of Frank. When Jack was here in June he and I went to New York together and got floral pieces and went together to Woodlawn and placed them on Frank and Olive's grave. It touched us both. It was an old scene. We took together out there alone, for Frank and Olive, and it made us smile each other."

MARRIAGE NO OBSTACLE.

"Flo Ziegfeld said in his Paris interview last week that marriage would hurt my career. He made that statement when he knew where I signed the 'Rally' contract. I was a married woman, the wife of Frank Carter. That an index of how much he can be relied on as to his charge against Jack."

"Flo can't opposed to my marriage so much as he is opposed to Jack Pickford. Let me answer that marriage is the very finest state for a person on the stage. I found it to constantly trained me as I moved about the stage. That's what married life did for me and it will do the same for other stars and for members of the professional in general."

"It's the proper state!" It was a big asset for Flo Ziegfeld, my manager. I still an imbued with ambition. I want to climb higher. Self-satisfaction is the first evidence that one is slipping. I am constantly studying and trying to improve myself."

ONLY PLEA FOR REST.

"Why should Flo Ziegfeld try to interfere with my private plans? It is an affair of his whom I marry. He is stated in Paris that I had called upon after appeal for his consent. What trash! The only request I called to him was one for a much-needed rest."

"I am blessed with a strong constitution and good health and I seriously guard both. The last evidence that I have not lost a single performance or rehearsal, Mr. Ziegfeld should appreciate that fact."

"I said that my marriage to Frank Carter improved my work. I am more proficient in my profession. I expect that I shall enjoy the same comfort and freedom, the same ambition to progress in my career and work, as the wife of Jack Pickford."

HOLD ROXBURY MAN IN BAD CHECK CASE
Stephen Ryan, twenty-four years old, of Mt. Pleasant street, Roxbury, was arrested on the charge of larceny through passing a worthless check. Police acted on information furnished by an agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Association. The police alleged that Ryan offered a check for $150 for a $50 suit, pocketing the change. The check was worthless. Ryan claims the check was found by the owner and has decided that the owner must have stopped payment on it.

BELIEVES WIFE 315,591 TONS VICTIM OF OF HARD COAL FOUL PLAY NOW IN STATE

But $18,315 tons of hard coal is in the yards of Massachusetts dealers. Fuel Commissioner Sullivan stated today. Unless mining is started without delay, those who are dependent upon this fuel will experience temporary difficulty.

The fuel commissioner has decided for the present he will leave no regulatory orders because he is convinced dealers are endeavoring to obtain supplies with fairness to the general public.

With the amount of soft coal left over from the previous year together with receipts in July 1, the State he says, has practically one-fifth of its annual supply.

He calls attention to the fact that there are sufficient stocks of soft coal and coke on hand, in spite of the strike, and that these can be used as profitable substitutes in an emergency.

WOMAN HATER ENDS LIFE BY GAS

Living upon the rents of three pieces of real estate and a small sum of money he had saved as a laborer in an upholstery factory, this Edmund T. Walsh, the aged South Boston recluse, who committed suicide the morning of the Fourth, acquires his fortune.

This woman knows today when the father of one of the heirs to whom the old man left a part of his money told the story of the dead man's life.

AVERSION TO WOMEN.

Compulsive alone he lived, for more than forty years. Cherishing some peculiar aversion to women, Walsh refused to hire even a housekeeper to attend to his affairs.

In the same two rooms that he occupied when his parents died, many years ago, the recluse spent the last thirty-five years of his life. Children loved him and he greeted them kindly upon the street. A daily walk in the neighborhood of Gates street, South Boston, where he lived, was his only recreation. Dressing himself carefully, for personal appearance was a matter of importance with him, the old man took this daily walk for the last twenty years.

And then, tiring at last of the loneliness of it all, the old fellow turned on the gas jet, and, tightly closing the doors to his little strong hold, consumed his fortune into other hands.

NATIVE OF SOUTH BOSTON.

Edmund T. Walsh was seventy-one years of age when he died and he laid down his tools and quit his work when he was about thirty-four years of age. He figured that he could live and save upon the income that most persons would find meagre. And he did.

Walsh was born on Fourth street, South Boston, and had never been far from his birthplace. He moved to No. 18 Gates street, a narrow throw away, when his parents died and remained there until his death. There is no great secret in how this apparently poor man acquired his fortune. He declared that he had denied himself throughout his life. He even chose to die upon a day when all his fellows were making merry throughout the land.

Mrs. Stillman did not arrive with her.

GRAND OPERA LEADER IS STRANGELY MISSING

Milton, Okla., July 14.—A search was being made today for Joseph Andre Tresselt, Grand Opera conductor, who disappeared a week ago. He had been directing rehearsals for the latest municipal Summer opera. It was at first believed he had left for a brief visit, but when he failed to return his friends became alarmed and started a search. He previously had been engaged in development of municipal opera in England, Europe, South Africa and Australia.

New York, July 14.—Alfonso de la Huerta, Mexican Minister of Finance, just before his departure for Mexico City today, refused to believe his conclusion of an agreement with foreign bankers regarding funding of Mexican bonds, or his parleys with American oil interests would lead to the restoration of Mexico by the American government.

"I do not believe our financial agreement with the committee of international bankers has any bearing on our internal policy although no doubt it may have some influence on the general feeling of the American public toward the present administration of Mexico," he said.

WILL RESPECT PROPERTY.

Asked if the rights of Americans in Mexico hereafter would not be more fully respected, the former provisional president of Mexico, he replied:

"Foreign interest, legally developed, will always be respected in my country."

Asked if the return of Mexican railroads to private management would help business, he replied:

"I do not believe the return of railroads, of which the Mexican government owns the greater part of stock, to private management, will have any bearing on international trade. That trade will only be great if developed when hindrances of a political nature, by which we are internationally affected (renewed), are removed."

RECEIVER FOR THE E. OILS COMPANY

Sport Clothes Find Particular Favor With Mrs. Weld, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

Joseph F. Bacon of Boston today was appointed temporary receiver for the New England Oil Company. Bonds were set at $100,000.

The petition, brought by Henry B. Parker, sets the company's liabilities at $10,447,321, and lists "contingent or possible liabilities aggregating $1,454,000." It states that the assets are sufficient to cover all liabilities.

Judge Mack set July 29 for a hearing on a permanent receivership.

The New England Oil Company is said to be the largest producer and supplier of oil to industry in Massachusetts and northern New England. The difficulties of the company are said to be caused by a verdict of $1,181,000 obtained against it by the Island Oil Marketing Company in the Federal Court of Virginia, in a breach of contract suit.

The principal assets of the New England company are made up of the entire stock in the New England Oil Refining Company of Fall River and part of the New England Oil Corporation, Ltd., of Canada. The former company has a net worth of $2,450,000 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1921, and the latter company is said to be running with good profit.

The petition of the New England Company states the respondent company is unable to obtain funds, collateral or credit to enable the company to pay its debts, amounting to $1,320,000, to prevent execution pending an appeal of the case.

The petition asks for a receiver to take charge of the assets and other assets of the company and for an injunction restraining creditors from instituting proceedings against the company.

ARTIST ON TRIAL FOR WIFE MURDER

Lawrence, July 14.—Vito Caruso, an Italian artist of No. 109 Garden street, charged with slaying his wife, Rose, on trial for the crime today. According to the police, Caruso, who is head of a local interior decorating firm, married his wife when he arrived in Boston. She was held as a material witness. Drawers had been forced open and the house ransacked when police arrived on the scene.

MRS. MARIA N. PAGE DIES IN BROOKLINE

Mrs. Maria N. Page, 68, of Brookline, died today at her home, 100 West Main street, after a long illness. She was the widow of the late Rev. William Wallace Page, who died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Robert C. Hanson, of No. 28 John street, Brookline.

Mrs. Page was the granddaughter of the late President Elihu Root of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., an office he held for over sixty years. She was a sister of the late Chief Justice of the Court of Claims, New York, who was appointed by President Lincoln. She was a cousin of the late Bishop Henry Codrington Potter of New York.

Mrs. Page's mother was the daughter of the late Governor Taylor of New York.

HELD IN TAXI SALES ROBBERY

Boston, July 14.—William B. Silva, 35, was held today in connection with the Grand Jury in the First District Court today, on a charge of highway robbery. On June 5, Cliff Boncher, a taxi driver, was hired by Silva and another man to take them from Salem to Manchester. Through the two overpowered Boncher, bound, gagged and tied him to a tree, robbed him of $200, and made off with his taxi, which was found the next day abandoned near Ipswich. Silva was arrested a few days ago in a Gloucester dance hall. The other man has not been apprehended.

DAHLBORG WANTS TO BE BROCKTON MAYOR

State Senator Edward N. Dahlborg today announced himself a candidate for Mayor of his home city, Brockton. Dahlborg is but thirty-five, but in his short career of life has served one year in the Brockton City Council, three years in the House and is now representing the city in the Senate. He is a lawyer and a "ringer," being a member of the Masons, Elks, Knights of Pythias and numerous fraternal clubs.

3 FOUND GUILTY IN LIQUOR CASES

Samuel Michaelson, Milton, arrested, Roxbury, and Fred Hise of Shawmut avenue were each fined $100 in Roxbury Court today for exporting and keeping for sale in exporting liquors. They were charged with exporting liquor from the Benjamin Franklin of 144 Court street for one month for a minor offense and an additional month for making an illegal sale of liquor.

BLAKE, ON WORLD AIR TRIP, IN ZIZA

Boston, July 14.—Major W. Z. Blake, the British aviator, arrived here from Zila, Palestine, today, on his attempted flight around the world.

Particularly fond of sport clothes is Mrs. Lathrop M. Weld (Dorothy Wells), who occupies a prominent place on our list of the six matrons in Boston society standing out as the most smartly groomed.

Ever since her debut with the very popular group of 1919 girls, the younger daughter of Mrs. Lathrop M. Weld has been noted for the smartness of her sartorial display. She is a slender young woman, with the blackest of hair and eyes—and just the type for whom our fashion artists seem to have created sport clothes. I recall that last Summer Mrs. Weld was frequently seen along the streets at Beverly Farms garbed in the very latest sport model, with a dainty cane swinging smartly from one arm.

It was a year ago last June that a goodly portion of society made its way to Emmanuel Church for the widely-paragraphed ceremonial which transformed Dorothy Wells into the bride of the young Harvard 19 man. The bride's wedding gown of white chiffon and lace, with pearl embroidery, excited many murmurs of admiration from those present, while the whiteness of the lace veil, arranged in fan effect at the back of the head and held in place with orange blossoms, set off most effectively the blackness of the wearer's hair.

Among the group of attractive young women attending the bride was Mrs. Arthur L. Richmond (Joan Mearns), whose name also figures on our list of the six most smartly-groomed matrons. These young women are very close friends of the former Dorothy Wells serving as bridesmaid at Joanne Mearns' wedding.

Mr. Weld for the moment is the most serious of things of life—a number of prominent matrons are interested in the Children's Day, which is to be held on Boston Common, Saturday afternoon, July 22, from 12 until 3 o'clock. This gathering will close the "Million Cans of Milk for Russian Babies" campaign for such matrons as Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman, Dr. Leslie Adams Wood, Mrs. Leverett Bradley, Mrs. Alice L. W. Morris and Mrs. Edward H. James will arrive.

Every youngster coming to the meeting will bring with him a can of condensed milk, for the slogan of the day is "A Can of Condensed Milk With Every Child," so that the huge pile of cans for Russian children may be built. Surely an appealing sight!

Those in charge have arranged for a hand concert, and there is to be a dance of the "Milk Fairies" in costume. There will also be an address by Mayor Curley and the presentation by him of two gold pieces to the boy and girl winner of the Prize Essay Contest, now being conducted by the committee.

If you happen to be at any of the little railroad stations along the North Shore around home-stations today, you'll see a goodly number of matrons lining the curb. Wise and laughing-looking and full of life, they'll be at the wheel of some of them, but there you'll see a fashionable matron "on duty" waiting for hubby.

Among the ladies who arrive at the Beverly station promptly at 4:15 aboard her racey-looking blue Buick. The other lady, who is a friend of the golden hair and blue-gray eyes. She was wearing a striking silk gown of American manufacture. It will be remembered that Mrs. Tully won first prize in the beauty contest conducted by the Boston American some time ago.

THE Russell Codmans of Marlboro street have returned from a two months' trip abroad, and are now at their home, 100 West Main street, Brookline, for the remainder of the season. Their son, Russell Jr., was a contestant in the American Cup in rowing a shell, giving the Union Boat Club the credit over two other clubs.

HARDING TOO BUSY TO TALK LEGISLATION

Washington, July 14.—Senator Harding today declined to discuss the legislative program of the President, particularly the rail and coal strikes, caused a postponement of the day of the executive's conference with Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Senate Republican leader, on the Senate legislation situation. The Massachusetts Senator spent a half hour with the President, leaving him to be had from Mr. Harding's occupied with the industrial situation that it was agreed that discussion of legislative matters might better wait until later.

Two thousand additional men will be put at work at once at the Ford River plant in Quincy as the result of orders received today by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., from the Navy Department in Washington to proceed with the conversion of the battleship cruiser carrier.

There are at present 2,800 men employed at the plant. The new shift will bring the total to 4,000 men, a number of the men of the war time.

The department conference allowed for the conversion of two of the six battleship cruiser carrier, and Congressmen Floyd Benjamin and Congressman Braden of Quincy are expected to be present at the ceremony held at Ford River yard.

CHARGES PLOT OVER CONTROL OF B. & M.

Charges that the New York Central Railroad is attempting to gain control of the Boston & Maine Railroad through illegal means were made today by Edmund D. Codman in seeking an injunction in Supreme Court to prevent certain stockholders from voting.

Mr. Codman, who holds 788 shares of B. & M. stock and proxies for 18,000 additional shares in the road, alleged officials of the New York Central have entered into an illegal scheme with B. & M. directors to get control of the majority of the B. & M. stock and make President Smith of the New York Central chairman of the board of directors of the B. & M.

Mr. Codman alleges that Frederick H. Price and Guy W. Currier, both of Boston, named as defendants, are acting as agents for the Central Railroad.

He seeks an injunction to prevent the carrying out of the scheme, which he charges is a violation of the statutes relating to unlawful combinations. He also asks that proxies awarded by a stockholders' committee be not counted as it is an attempt to unlawfully form a corporation by pooling B. & M. stock.

Filing of the papers today follows the refusal of Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court to grant Mr. Codman an injunction to restrain the Boston & Maine Company from declaring a vote on 232,000 shares of stock owned by the New Haven road and voted at the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine Company. The vote was voted by trustees appointed by the United States Circuit Court of Southern New York with orders to vote for the six directors nominated by the New Haven road.

ROOSEVELT TO BE BECKMAN'S GUEST

Newport, R. I., July 14.—Former Governor R. Livingston Beckman, who is here on a vacation, will be acting Secretary of the Navy Reception at Newport, Rhode Island, today. He is a guest upon his arrival in Newport, though he had anticipated entertaining the Secretary, Mr. Roosevelt, to come to Newport and join him on the seaplane trip to Newport, which has been accepted.

SEEK IMPROVEMENT OF DORCHESTER ST.

Mayor Curley has received a letter from Robert R. Hynes, president of the Boston American, asking for the improvement of Dorchester street between Eighth street and Andrew square. The street is said to be in a dangerous condition at present, as well as being a dangerous street.

Dorchester street is a main route from South Boston to Roxbury. From Eighth street to Broadway it is fairly good, but the worst part of the street is between the work of paving the good section, as most traffic has taken a roundabout route to avoid the bad stretch.

ARREST WOMAN AS BRUNEN WITNESS

Parkerville, Va., July 14.—The arrest here of Mary Miller, with a carnival company, may help to unravel the mysterious killing of John T. Bruner, circus proprietor, at Riverdale, N. J., on March 31. It is thought by New Jersey authorities that the woman, who was seen this morning for the first time, is wanted as a material witness, having been an associate of the dead circus man's wife.

SAILOR ENTERS MINISTRY TO AID MATES

From sailor to mate of a vessel! then minister, going among his former comrades on Boston waterfront, was a boy, as a boy, who would find his hard ship on the way deep, at the experience of Rev. Robert H. Herman.

Daily he may be found ministering to the needs of the newly arrived sailors, as well as to the old sailors who know him well and value his services.

He is under the support of the Massachusetts Bible Society, Broadfield street. He distributes in different languages the Bible and as he can speak several languages, he reads to the sailors when opportunity is afforded.

Heurman is a native of Denmark and in landing in Boston some time ago, made up his mind to help his own countrymen in this city and minister to others. He entered the School of Religious Education, Boston University, and was graduated last year.

STORM POSTPONES FIREWORKS

The cloud burst which struck Boston last yesterday caused last night's fireworks spectacular "Bumping the Navy" to be postponed until tonight.

The show was ready for the evening performance when John Serpio, president of the International Company, who is personally supervising the operation of the fireworks, was informed by the operators that it was too dark to work to drag out the show, and he decided to postpone the show and his bombs and rockets.

More than 20,000 people had attended the opening performance, and there was every indication that another record breaking crowd would be in attendance last night.

Cambridge Youth Saved After He Leaps Off Ship

New York, July 14.—John Murphy, who said his home was in Cambridge, Mass., was saved from drowning in the East River by volunteer lifesavers, who pursued him half a mile down-stream in a lifeboat.

Murphy, who was nude when pulled from the water, at first attempted to resist the efforts of the life guards. He had the police, who said he was intoxicated, that he had jumped from a Boston-bound steamer, the name of which he did not give. He was taken to a hospital for treatment.

HEARING JULY 18 FOR LAWHORN

John D. Lawhorn, marine engineer, charged with the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, Winchester railroad ticket agent, slain in April, will appear before a special session of the Middlesex County Grand Jury on July 18.

Word was received from the Navy Department at Washington to the Navy Yard to allow Lawhorn to appear before the Grand Jury and receive his denial of the shooting.

Lawhorn was recently examined by District Attorney Endicott P. Nationalist, who called the session of the jury and requested Lawhorn to appear. Permission was necessary from the Navy Department.

POLICE ASK HELP TO FIND GIRL

The Brooklyn police have asked the assistance of the Boston American in trying to locate Jerda Berga, a young Swedish girl who arrived in this country in 1911. The girl is supposed to have worked and lived in Brooklyn. The police have exhausted all means in trying to find her.

The attention of the police was first called as the result of a telegram received from the Royal Consulate-General of Sweden, stationed at New York. He asked the police to search for the girl, but no reason was given for trying to apprehend her.

ONE-MAILED ROAD BEATS EDISON COMPANY

J. L. Imbuech and three prospective residents of Lee 34th road, Boston, today brought the Edison Company to its feet.

Lee Mill road has a solitary resident, Mr. Imbuech. Two more houses, one a double tenement, are being built, with others to come in the near future.

He appealed to the Edison to run its wires through the street to supply him and the prospective customers with light. The Edison refused. Imbuech appealed to the State Department of Public Utilities. The Edison gave in and the department announced today that unless the Edison keeps its word it will issue a formal order directing the company to supply Mr. Imbuech and the others with power.

Snyder-Cure

Boxed as neatly as confections - and almost as sweet

WHEN your market sends your next box of Snyder-Cure Bacon, open it yourself.

You won't see the skill and care that selected the pork, nor the patient science that cured it so mildly.

You won't see the sweet corn smoke that hovered over it for hours.

All you will see is a series of delectable cream-and-pink slices, laid in as evenly as a pattern on marble.

But if you were our official Inspector (as you really are), you would "pass" without question a product whose packing speaks so clearly for the respect and the skill with which it was prepared.

And when it's on the table you'll admit that your official judgment is good.

Tell your marketman to send you the next box tomorrow.

FATTED WEDS, CLUB WOMAN ENDS LIFE

Edith H. Arnold, wealthy club woman and recluse, committed suicide by gas in the home of Mrs. Josephine Kowall, No. 18 Danvers street, West Roxbury, saying she was "tired."

Club in a tiny nightgown, the woman was found stretched prone on a bed with a gas tubing in her mouth. Each window was carefully sealed with tape.

Mrs. Arnold was the daughter of Louis Arnold, reputed aged millionaire real estate owner of West Roxbury, from whom she had been estranged since his second marriage seven years ago.

At that time Mr. Arnold, an eccentric, had married Mrs. Emily H. Keane, a society woman and "diva." The daughter, who had lived alone with the father in the large family mansion on Park street, Roxbury, suddenly became intensely jealous. "Why have you done this to me," she suddenly ran from the house, since that time her father declares that he has never beheld his daughter.

Two letters were left on the cover of the bed by the victim. One, addressed to Attorney Charles H. Frosten, of No. 18 Tremont street, Boston, related in incoherent manner her severe yearning and her reasons. It directed that the matter known of by the attorney be taken care of. The second, addressed to Mrs. Kowall, was addressed to Mrs. Kowall, thanking her for her hospitality.

Both letters, together with some of the family clothing, were found in the room where taken by Medical Examiner Leary, who viewed the body, she had been killed by Mrs. Arnold upon her finding of the body.

The dead woman, who was thirty-eight years old, was a member of the Danvers Club, had no known permanent residence. Her Attorney Frosten, with whom she had conversed in the past week, was absolutely ignorant as to her place of domicile.

NAVY YARD HEAD NOW REAR ADMIRAL

Brooklyn, July 14.—Commandant Carl T. Vogelpang of the Brooklyn Navy Yard has received official notification of his promotion to rear admiral.

It is expected that he will remain here in charge of the yard, which has been increased in rating. Rear Admiral Vogelpang is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Rear Admiral C. T. Vogelpang entered the navy in 1881, with an appointment from California. He was graduated in 1892.

EXHUME BODY TO SEEK IDENTIFICATION

West Roxbury, July 14.—The body of an unidentified man found under the new memorial bridge recently will be exhumed tomorrow in an attempt to establish his identity. He is believed to be William Joy, who disappeared a short time ago and has not been seen or heard from since. Members of his family have requested that the body be exhumed so that they might attempt to identify it.

FLAPPER SHOES CALL FOR CHANGED GAIT

New York, July 14.—Young women who affect the flat-soled shoes much favored by flappers are told in a warning issued by the orthopedic specialists at the reconstructed hospital, to walk with the heel and the action and the toes pointed straight forward. Otherwise, so the doctors said, they would find it difficult to avoid fallen arches. Girls who wear high heeled pumps with hating sails have the right idea to avoid weak or flat feet, the hospital authorities said.

WOMEN STONE YEGGS AND PREVENT HOLD-UP

Trenton, N. J., July 14.—Three women hurrying home with their handbags prevented a daylight hold-up on a bank dealer's wagon, where the men were checking the driver. The women pursued the wagon until the arrival of the police, who arrested the two bandits.

PROBE DEATH IN AUTO CRASH AT RAIL CROSSING

Investigation of the crash when the "Lawson Special," an express train for the South Shore on the New Haven road, crossed the auto tracks, was started today by Assistant District Attorney George E. Adams of Quincy.

The crash resulted in the death of an old woman, probably fatal injuries to her son, and a narrow escape from death by another man. The crash occurred at Quincy avenue, Weymouth Landing, while the crossing gates were up.

After a conference with Chief of Police Jeremiah Gallivan of Quincy, it was decided to present the case to the Quincy District Court today, and it is possible that a warrant, charging false testimony, will be applied for.

The dead woman was Mrs. D. M. Eldridge, sixty-two years old, of No. 412 Canterbury street, Roxbury. Her son, David P. Eldridge, of 125 Cotton street, Roxbury, is on the danger list at the Quincy City Hospital, suffering from severe injuries and probable internal injuries.

Alfred H. Cowett, thirty-three years old, miss manager for the Quincy branch of Swift & Co., was badly cut and bruised about the head. He was taken to the hospital, where he is recovering from his injuries.

The driver sustained fractured ribs, while his wife's sister Anita Flinn, suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Held in Auto Impaled on Engine Pilot; Escapes Death

Donald Joseph Grafton, son of a Pittsburgh millionaire, and wedded to two of Mr. Ziegler's chorus girls, is paying ardent court to a young girl in a Brooklyn shop factory.

Meanwhile, he is being hotly treated by the two wives, who are intent on restricting the Grafton harem to his present state.

The two wives are Paulette Lorraine of No. 235 Lefferts street, Malden, and Peggy Davis. With them in a touring car, scouring the shops in quest of a glimpse of the philanthropist's son, is young Harry J. Lorraine, Paulette's brother, who is assisting her Grafton.

For two days the chase has been on. Paulette recently tried to commit suicide in the waiting room of the Pennsylvania station in New York, because Grafton had deserted her. She was taken to a hospital, recovered, and then returned to her home in Malden.

Grafton's latest choice is said to be a former Macomber, N. H., girl. Grafton is reported to have been seen during the past few days in the vicinity of a Brooklyn factory and Peggy and Paulette are hopeful of finding him there.

HOVEY EMPLOYEES NAME COUNCIL

Results of the elections for the employees and managers' council of the C. F. Hovey Association were announced today. Twelve representatives were picked for the two councils by employees and executives of the firm.

The annual picnic of the Hovey Association is scheduled for September 10. Special arrangements have been made by the executives of the Hovey Company so that every employee of the store can make the trip for one dollar.

The new employees' council is composed of Thomas Twomey, G. A. Arnold, Francis Demondville, Melville Forsythe, J. W. Hunter, Marie Hurley, D. J. Kane, Martin Kennedy, W. J. Ralph, R. J. Roberts, Mrs. K. W. Saunders and Mrs. Amber Wilson.

Representatives on the managers' council are Ray Hall, A. S. Beck, William Henry C. W. Tullin, William Edwards, Charles Stanley, Meyer Hoffman, C. A. Jordan, Zeph Grady, J. H. Wadley, Lawrence Wheelock and J. J. Zimmerman.

25 P.C. DROP IN PRICE OF MEN'S SUITS

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER. Latest series of suit measurements have fallen in price about 25 per cent, below their former high prices.

Prices still are so consistently on the wane that clothes here are stated that pre-war figures are likely to be attained within the next few months, barring unforeseen conditions.

The suits are now selling at 25 per cent, under the price of last year and about 50 per cent below the figures of war days are identical in every way with those higher-priced garments.

The manager of a chain of men's furnishings shops today made this statement, and added that because of falling prices the usual wide summer clothing sales have been moved up a month, and are being held now instead of in August. By that time, he continues, merchants feared they would be obliged to let everything go at a far below what they paid for their stock early in the spring, as to suffer a great loss.

REPUBLICANS' HIGH TARIFF BILL MEANS HIGHER PRICES

EVERY SCIENTIFIC DEVICE OBTAINABLE FOR THE Relief and Cure of Nervous and Wounded Veterans Will Be Used in the New Psychic Therapy Section of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau! The photograph shows disabled war veterans receiving treatment at the bureau, which is located at No. 600 Washington street. Dr. Arthur E. Bridges is in charge, and under him are working 14 skilled aids, many of whom served in the hospitals of France.

RUTH GOODMAN THINKS ATTY-GEN. ALLEN Is a Wise Cracker, So She Thought She'd Sell Him a Cookie! Ruth, who hangs her hatter at somewhere in South Boston, was one of the "seven best sellers" in the Volunteers of America drive to give 2,000 mothers and children an outing at a Bridgport camp. Cookies was the place de resistance. Veterans joined with pretty girls in selling the cookies.

"INSULATED FLIRTIATIONS ARE INSULTING!" This is what pretty Sacha Beaumont says in answer to the Rev. Paul Rader's charge that "telephone vamps" are the worst type of airmen. "Girls nowadays talk with gay, cynical boldness to any man who appears on the wire," opines the rev. "It's the man's fault," says Sacha. "I am called every day by insipid MALE phone vamps."

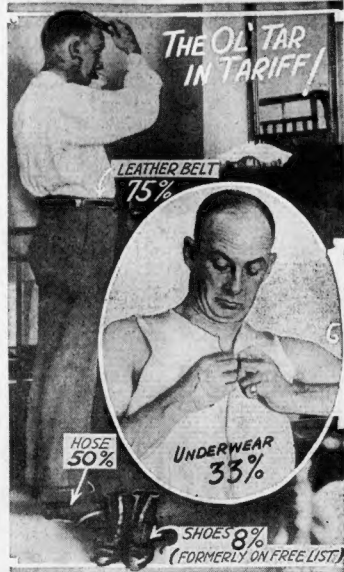

AHOY, SEA BEAUTIES, This Test Is Open to Any Maid or Matron in New England! There is no red tape. Just send in your prettiest bathing picture, and if you send a snapshot, be sure that the negative accompanies it. That doesn't sound very difficult, does it? Today's winners are Alice S. Duke of No. 237 Shawmut avenue, Boston (at top), and Ellen Geller of No. 49 Dix street, Revere. Checks for $5 will be mailed to them. Address all entries to Sea Beauty Editor, Boston American. Ye Ed would like to hear from some of the northern New England girls.

THE LADY HASN'T A Headache—It's the Latest Fad Among Newport's Younger Set! Miss Marian Wickes, one of the prettiest of the masses at the resort, is wearing the "beach band."

MAYOR CURLEY IS RIGHT IN HIS REBUKE TO UNITED STATES LINES For Failure to Make Boston a Port of Entry and Clearance Instead of a Port of Call! Lines controlled by English interests find it worth while to make Boston a "home port," but the government line apparently lacks this foresight. The recent call to this port of the President Adams, shown above, is characterized as of little value either to the port or to the United States line. There is plenty of room for the federal craft. What's the trouble?

CHAPTER V. Even Public B. Darned's B. e. Vee Dees takes a jump of 33 p. c. in the Republican new tariff bill. His shoes, which formerly were as free as ashes, now jump 8 p. c. And it's the same story with his hose, which hops upward 50 p. c. and even his underwear by Leon Errol of "Bally," takes the count o' nine tomorrow.

HERE'S A CAPE OF RUBBER THAT Would Make 'Em Rubber at Nantasket! Just the thing to wear over wet bathing suits is this new fashionable sunbath cape, modishly fashioned of a rubber texture. A route of same material serves as a fastener. (International News Reel.)

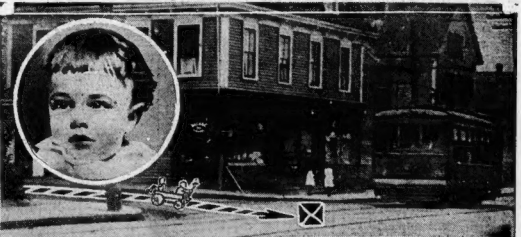

"IF THERE'S GONNA BE ANY MO' HOT DAYS I'm Gonna Git Me a Private Cow!" Them are the sentiments of cute little Joseph Vincent of Roxbury, who says iced milk is the cow slip on hot days.

"SO LONG, CUSPIDORS AND SPORTY MAGAZINES! How'd'y, women's magazines and powder jars. That's the latest story for the ladies' shops. Blame it on the flapper. Bobbed hair did it. Meet Miss Mary Schullis, reading her "Good Housekeeping" in Vena's, Summer street, Boston.

THERE SEEMS TO BE A LITTLE TROUBLE ON THE Beach! However, only a pair o' beach combes in training for the championship of Nantasket. One beach bystander said it looked more like a petting party to him. Ain't men the fresh things?

COASTING DOWN HILL IN CART MAY COST LIVES OF TWO LITTLE LYNN boys! Photo-diagram indicates how John McCarthy, aged four, of No. 337 Chestnut street, and Fred, aged three, of No. 388 Chestnut street, shown in circle, crashed into a one-man trolley car on Chestnut street near their homes, receiving serious internal injuries. The youngsters, who were thrown a considerable distance, were rushed to the Lynn Hospital, where their names were placed on the danger list.

"MISSION LOVE CHILD"

Revelations of the amorous conduct of the Rev. "Mel" Trotter, known as the second Billy Sunday, have been printed in daily installments in the Boston American. They are contained in a suppressed affidavit of George E. Walker, former president of the rescue mission founded by Trotter in Grand Rapids, Mich., the scene of Mrs. Trotter's suit for divorce.

The charge that "Mel" Trotter confessed he was the father of Florence Moody's "mission love child," as made by Mrs. Trotter, is brought forth in today's installment from the suppressed affidavit which figured in the Trotter divorce case in Grand Rapids.

Today's installment contains the autobiographical report of the cross examination of Mr. Walker at a secret meeting held last January. Throughout the barrage of questions fired at him by the attorney, Mr. Walker clung to his story that Mrs. Trotter repeated to him the alleged confessions made by her evangelistic husband.

"Oh, Little, I have made such a fool of myself," Mrs. Trotter said the mission worker cried out. "I'm the father of that child. Help me as you have helped me in the past."

"SMOOTHING THINGS OVER." The cross-examination followed: Q.—At the board meeting you reported that you had a talk with Miss Moody? A.—Yes.

Q.—You were trying to smooth things over at that meeting? A.—I certainly was.

Q.—But you said to Miss Moody, "You don't want to know that Mrs. Trotter has been told by somebody positively that Trotter was the father of the child?" A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Will you kindly explain how you happened to say that if you were trying to smooth things over? A.—Because it looked to me, who knew that Miss Moody partly lived at the Trotter home and more nearly everywhere with Mr. and Mrs. Trotter that she ought to have some better excuse than merely "I will die before I tell the man's name and see a home broken up" and then say she had made it right with Jesus.

PUNISHMENT AS GREAT. Q.—Then you were trying to drag from Miss Moody a confession that he was the father of the child, weren't you? A.—No, sir, I explained to her that as far as Mr. Trotter being the father I didn't care that much (snapping his finger), but if the news had come to Mrs. Trotter that Mr. Trotter was the father and

THE SOUNDS OF DOUBTS
AND DOUBTS DREAM

By NICK PLATLEY.
Speaker takes his Indians away from here this night and will not offend anyone greatly by so doing.

The westerners, who looked like a soft setup for the Indians, unfortunately decided to play their best baseball in this series, and as a result, they sprang right out of danger of dropping into seventh place.

Three victories in a row gave them all that edge on the Red Sox, and that's quite a gap to bridge, especially with the Detroit Tigers coming along to make life easy and exciting. Try Cobb and his gang will be in a bad mood, too, after assimilating a lot of unexpected thumps over in Philadelphia.

The Red Sox have been mauled and clobbered by the Beaneaters far in the campaign, so it should be their first to do a bit of destroying.

The Indians took away all the momentum the natives gained by a easy, right series with the Browns, and now the Fenway athletes will have to begin all over again.

Against the Indians the club has put hit at all, while the pitching, except in the first game, has been very shaky.

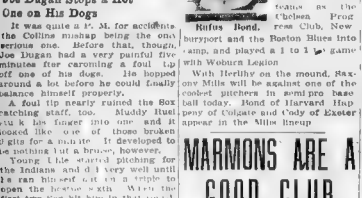

Big Cobb turned in a good game yesterday, but as he was hurt the club will be without his services for quite a few days. The young man has all the par marks of a mighty fine pitcher, his one fault being a tendency to grow wild very early and then, flares on balls wrecked his chance of victory just as they have before.

Young Hurricane Coming But Umpire Sticks to Guns
When all this was going on, the clouds were flying mainly over the field, a young hurricane was whipping up dust columns all over the place, and it was like a scene as signs, but the rain did not and Umpire Wild Wane had no doubt at all but keep right on playing, when he might have called it all off, and let the game go as it was.

Joe Dugan Drops a Hot One on His Dogs
It was quite a lot, for according to the Collins manager being the only serious one. Before that, though, Joe Dugan had a very painful five minutes for carrying a foul ball off one of his dogs. He hopped around a lot before he could finally balance himself properly.

Presented by Revillon Films,
Produced by Robert J. Flaherty, F. H. G. S.

"NANKO OF THE NORTH," beginning at Gerardo's Olympia this week, is decidedly worth while. It is a picture of the North, made in the North, and edited and made ready for business of the North, and with Flaherty leading the film, "Nanki" and "extra" roles. While it has no definite plot with a villain and a hero and a heroine, it has the moments of suspense and more than its share of the "Nanki" and "extra" roles. "WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWERS"
Comopolitan production—Marrington
Marrington, is headed toward a remarkable success, judging from reports from New York. It is said that the picture is a "rusher" of this film, the Famous Players-Lasker Corporation, and that they paid the Comopolitan Company the largest advance deposit yet placed on a picture.

"DEARLY WHITE ONCE MORE"
Pearl White is reversing the order of things. Most of the time she is making for Europe to start vacationing, but now she has reached New York yesterday to start work on "Dear Dearly White Once More," the picture which she is making for the Comopolitan Company.
